Michelle Galloway Returns for "Dealing with Bullies in the Workplace"

October 23 | 5:30-8:00 | Empowered by Teradata

One of Athena's coveted speakers, Michelle Galloway, returns on October 23 for "Dealing with Bullies in the Workplace."

A third of workers say they've been bullied at work, according to a CareerBuilder survey.

Women, young workers and LGBT employees report the highest rates of bullying. Not only does it take a psychological and emotional toll on the employees, but it can also come to an enormous business cost by reducing productivity and leading to potential litigation.

Michelle, a Stanford lecturer and Cooley counsel, will help you identify workplace bullying, decode the psychology of bullying and provide effective strategies on dealing with the perpetrators. Learn how to drive an inclusive and safe culture in your organization by stopping bullying now.

Enrollment for Athena's FORUM FOR EXECUTIVE WOMEN Opens October 7

Are you ready to enrich your career development with accountability, peer-to-peer mentoring and a group of women that has your back? We're excited to accept member applications for Athena's Fall Forum for Executive Women (FEW) from October 7-24.

Athena's FEW program has long been characterized as your personal board of directors. FEW is a cohesive group of Athena members that meet monthly and provide invaluable peer group experience as you juggle the responsibilities of career choices that reflect your values.

"My FEW Group has been incredible. Women in STEM, helping one another. You can talk just about anything," Athena member Lisa Walters-Hoffert said. "It's been really valuable."

To maximize the FEW experience, Athena's member applicants are considered for peer placements based on the profile of applications and can expect to be placed with women from non-competing companies, while sharing mutual goals of gaining structured business guidance and personal support and direction. If you're empowered by that sense of accountability, support and diverse perspectives, what are you waiting for?

October 17 | 5:30 - 8:00 pm | Empowered by Latham & Watkins
